

LOIS WITH THE MONTGOMERY NEWS, NOVEMBER 6, 2022

11/6. A big change in the weather today, much needed rain arrived after the dry days that we have all enjoyed. The leaves are all down up this way, the trees look so naked. Rev Robert Purvee was here at the United Methodist Church today, he comes up from Burlington. He fills in as our Pastor to do Communion for us the first Sunday of each month. We are very blessed to have him officiate for us.

The Montgomery Historical Society will celebrate its 50th year in 2023. I have received word from Scott Perry that they have a new 2023 calendar hot off the press that will be available for sale locally at Lutz, Crafty Li's Gift shop, for just $10. Each. They have local historical pictures and dates annotated making them a local treat, and a great Christmas stocking stuffer. They will have a table of all their items at the Craft Sale that will be held December 10 at the Montgomery School Gym.

11/5. I have been trying to get the story for this column on the "Arts For The Park" Event that was held last night at the Town Hall. I heard the reservation tickets sold out early, therefore they had a large attendance for the dinner and the sale of all the donated Items/Art was a huge success. All the proceeds goes to the Montgomery Recreational Center. A Special Thanks to all that donated, to all that made this Event a big success, to all that help set up and clean up after..THANK YOU ONE AND ALL.

The Montgomery Center For the Arts presents its annual Montgomery Elementary School Fall Art Show. Students in K-8th grades will have their Art featured during Gallery Hours on November 11 & 18 from 10-4; Saturday & Sunday November 12, 13, 19 and 20 from 12-4. Thanks to MES Art Teacher and Programming Director Melissa Haberman for keeping this event going. Please write down the times if you plan to attend.
