

LOIS WITH THE MONTGOMERY NEWS, APRIL 28, 2019

4/28..The sun is trying to come out and warm things up this afternoon. Last night around 9:30 we were having a snow shower, I thought the grounds would be covered this morning but they weren't. Winter just hates to give up!!

4/25.. Maggie Elkins, Pamela Colburn and Maryann Mercy got together and went to the Enosburg House of Pizza for a lunch, and catch-up on what each had been doing during this loooong winter. They always have a good time reminiscing.

4/25. The Nimble Thimble Quilting Circle was invited by Jeannette Sylvester to come to her home in St. Albans. Therese Begnoche, Sue Peters and Suzanne Lavalla took their bag lunch and went down and they all sat around her table and ate and chatted. The ladies have completed the quilt for the St. Isidore's fund raiser and they are going to make matching pillows. Jeannette took the ladies down to her sewing room to let them see all the fabric she still has, as Jeannette is giving up on some of her projects.

Ariella Chambers of Montgomery, granddaughter of Marilyn Baker, has done some traveling during the Elementary School break. She met up with her Father in Springfield, Mass, and from Boston they flew to California to visit family and friends; from there they flew to Hawaii for a few days vacation. She will return home this week. Ariella is in the 8th grade.

4/26..I accompanied our two daughters Veronica DeSaintPhalle and Penny to Enosburg where we met up with my sister-in-law Roberta Martin and her daughter Priscilla Hammond. We made plans to attend the Enosburg House of Pizza for lunch. There we all had a good time chatting, and left with our bellies full. It had been awhile to see each other, WHY? Because some one is sick, or bad weather, thankfully even if we are not feeling well we can at least talk over the phone, or the girls text one another, helps to keep us close.

**Grandma over heard her grand children talking. Julie says to Sue, Our grand parents are funny aren't they; When they bend over, you hear gas leaks, and they blame their dog.** Let's pray for some nice weather for the weekend as that would be nice to have during our Rummage and Bake Sale. Take Care and God Bless!!
